

LONGRANGE cattle wormer is an injectable wormer that was put on the market last year. This wormer has proven to provide control of common intestinal parasites for 100-150 days. This is significant, as the protection it provides lasts long enough to break the life cycle of parasites. There have been many trials showing that yearling cattle given this injectable wormer perform well. Further, though it is not on the label, many producers who use LONGRANGE report that it helps control flies in their herd.
